Love and Honor and Pity and Pride and Compassion and Sacrifice (From the Collection The Boat)

Nam Le

A short story from Nam Le's New York Times best selling, The Boat. In Love and Honor and Pity..., Le offers a tender examination of memory, shared family history, and the bond between fathers and sons. It is late November, and while working on a short story to complete his tenure at the Iowa Writers' Workshop, a young Vietnamese-American author welcomes his estranged father into his home for three days. Out of touch for some time, the young man is apprehensive about this visit but hopes that he and his father can heal past wounds and move their relationship into a new phase. Paternal bonds can be tenuous, however, as the young writer quickly learns.
