Gone? Elmer Abear

...very inspiring, funny, yet spiritually deep. Written simply from deep within his heart, the author compels the reader to read on and on. This is a must for all--young and old, regardless of religion, nationality or outlook in life. Elnora M. Mercado, Former Managing Editor, Asian Pacific American Times, Denver, Colorado, USA. 'I have been in the street and have not slept and eaten for three days, can you help me?' When Elmer Abear heard this voice he looked around expectantly, but saw no one. It was then that he realized he was hearing a voice from the 'other side'--a supernatural calling from someone who had passed on. This became a routine in Elmer's life, a connection with the dead that served to both reinforce his faith and strengthen his love for God. Through challenging spiritual concepts such as purgatory and damnation tempered with touching details as small as the smell of his favorite flower sent by a fallen friend, Elmer explores the truth of metaphysical communication and shows believers what it means to encounter A Witness from the Other Side. Dr. Elmer Abear is an MD, studied priest, English Professor and published author of both prose and poetry. He currently resides in Ogdensburg, NY with his wife, Imelda. He also has three children, Rossana, Butch and Dave.
