It is a perfect amalgamation of facial expressions, hand gestures, foot position, arm gestures, and body posture. Correct body language communicates a positive impression about your personality.

Positive body language helps you meet and interact with new people. Facial expressions involve smile, frown, stare, eye movements, and movement of the face muscles to express your feelings and emotions.

Often other people do not interpret your message accurately because the words and body language are not well coordinated. When you talk to someone, you must maintain eye contact with the other person in order to win that person's trust.

You should learn to read and understand body language in order to strike a healthy conversation. The eBook discusses in detail about several gestures that help in effective communication.
