When Calleigh Nichols left her small hometown behind after high school she thought she would never look back. But after striking out in the big city, she finds herself right back where she started- living in her mom's house, going to the same bars, falling for the same guy.

When Calleigh runs into her old high school boyfriend she isn't convinced that Colt Miller has changed his ways since cheating on her before she left for her new life. But with no one else on her side it seems like the same forces that pushed her out of her old life are pushing her towards Colt.

Faced with the prospect of working the checkout line at the grocery store, Calleigh knows it's time to find something that will do what her big ambitions never could- make her happy.
