Excerpt from A Political Conspiracy of Jeff Davis, the Traitor, and the Copperhead Democracy, in the Nomination of George B. M'clellan for the Nation's Presidential Chair Unmasked

Loyal Americans; We come before you not as a politician, nor as a religious polemic We come before you to beg a hearing on a subject, not only of the deepest interest to us as a partnership in one Federal union of States, but involving, as we verily believe, the existence of our liberties, and the perpetuity of our republic.

In the treasonable political party theory of "independent local State rights," as these are characterized by the leaders of rebellion at the South, and by a disorganizing party claiming to be the orthodox democracy of the North, we have detected an invading, audacious conspiracy, under the mask of sacred State rights against the liberties of our country: we have dragged it forward into the light; we have stripped the visor off its face; and have brought it up to your tribunal for public judgment in case.

So far as our capacity of reasoning can extend, we pronounce it a treasonable party political invention: a policy mostly of foreign origin foreign in its support, and in its allegiance, and is having a baneful influence to sunder all that union nationality contemplated in the Constitution left to posterity by our fathers, to annul civil law, to vacate the Presidential chair, to annihilate Congress, to dissolve our Cabinet to palsy our military arm! and to gratify its lust of treasonable ambition, it has thrown this glorious republic into a war of human slaughter. It has waged this war for the extermination of this republican government and the sacred liberties of man. It has compelled its slaves at the South to grasp the hammer of treason and rivet stronger their chains, while its Northern army, foreign and domestic are held in veneration for their loyalty to the great bloody counterset. "State rights" theory.
